

Do You Feel Left Out...

I want to share with you a personal story. My son is seven years old. It was one year back i was on vacation in this nice resort. They had a wonderful swimming pool and they had reserved a small part of the pool for kids to play. Now i loved swimming but my son would not allow me to swim. He wanted me to remain in the kids section of the pool and play with him. And so i agreed to play with him for i had no choice.

It was fun splashing water and we had a great time. After an hour, he told me "Appa(Dad) now you can swim for ten minutes in the big pool if you wish to. "Big Deal !" I said to myself. Like every parent I loved my son. Infact he is the only person I listen to:). And so i removed him out of the kids pool and told him to sit at a place and watch me swim...

I jumped into the pool and i had barely swam five feet ahead and i looked back and i could not find my son sitting outside. I was scared to death. It was afternoon time and there was no one in the pool ... One more glance behind and i saw at a distance a tiny hand struggling to keep his hand above the water. It was my son. He had jumped into the water. He wanted to swim with me. I do not know how i reached to him in 2 seconds whether I jumped mid air or what i don't know i cannot recall.. but i turned and leaped into mid air caught him and pulled him outside the pool and was able to save his life. I have never forgotten that incident for a single day in my life.

I thank God for giving him a second chance. And I thank you for reading till this point.

As i reflect on that incident one of the first thingsthat comes to my mind is "I should have taught him to swim" If not for divine intervention i would have had to paya huge price that day for my casual approach towards this whole thing.

There are three interesting things which comes out of this whole incident.

Knowledge, Value, and Need.

Here is the equation. You can determine the Real Value of Knowledge only when you feel its real need....

If something would have gone wrong with my son that day i would have felt that the only skill needed in this earth life is swimming and i would have gladly paid any amount to the person who could rescue him from the pool. The need determines the value of knowledge not the skill or productby itself. You got to understand this especially whenwe are dealing with life....

I got a mail yesterday from someone who said thati should be offering this whole program for less than $49 and there was this another mail i got from a female who is now one month into our program that we should be charging atleast $2000 for this program because the knowledge shared was way too life changing. Now both are right in their own ways because the need determines the value.

I want to make it clear. Myself and John we are not doing this for money. Let this be made crystal clear. Yes there is an exchange of currency for the knowledge being imparted but see and stare with your own eyes at what you take back. If you think your life could change with a $9 ebook then your life got to be worth only that much

See what you take back infact do not even see that. Look at the integrity of the emails, see if it touches you ask questions to yourself, to me, but take action from your heart not your mind. The reason i am saying this is because any intelligent marketer would sell this whole course for $1897 easily and you might feel left out Even when someone charges $249 still you might feel left out

Even if we charge $9 someone would say i got to give it for free.

And even if we give it for free and charge for shipping someone would say "They are making lots of money they can giveit for free"

There is no end to all this...

The need determines the value of knowledge. You got to be wise enough to appreciate knowledge which comes from a totally different direction, which wants to take care of all your needs, your dreams solve your problems and provide you with all the tools for helping you live a magnificent life. You got to have the good wisdom to take it with both hands. Great things will fall into your lot only when you develop the subtle skill of placing the lower ones down.

This life is a great opportunity. Yes money can be made relationships can be formed, and many other dreams can be achieved but they alone live who live for others who feel for others rest are more dead than alive.

Do what you like make all the money, enter into every other relationship which you find exciting but do not forget that you are hereto accomplish something which is way too wonderful than all those things you dream of.

Don't be left out. And do not at the time of drowning think about the skills you should have accumulated. The time is now. Take a deep breath look far into the sky beyond the clouds, beyond all your current problems your worries, the things which have held you back and say to yourself "This has got to change right now, this moment and then you take another deep breath close your eyes firm your thought and look back into the clear blue sky and you might find that you had paid a lot of attention to your problems your worries and valued it so much that it has become predominant in your life and you had very little time to value your own skills your dreams your loveAll you got to do is to value your life, your love, your dream a little bit more than you value your problems and you will find life heading in a completely different direction...

The 45 slots for the program we announced yesterday was already taken over in the first hour. But the mail i wrote was so long that for some strange reason many were able to read only the first few paragraphs and the later ones got cut off. We received way too many emails and so the Lord of the Program John Harricharan directed me to take in another 15 people as many got missed out on this golden opportunity.

So you can decide if you would like to wait till you get completely drowned with the problems of life or you would like someone who can leap mid air and snatch you away from all the devils and bring hope joy and a smile in your face. It is your choice. And you have to quick very quick. This offer expires in 18 hours from now. Here is where you need to go

Thank you for being with me till the end God bless and have a wonderful day Vish

<http://www.spiritual-simplicity.com/index777.cfm>

P.S. This is a mail i got from a female who is a self help coach herself and charges four figures for an hourly consultation. Here is what she had to say after one of the calls....Again i have cut pasted it as it is.

Two things from our call were really helpful as I recognized myself in both.

The process is foolproof. Don't question the process, question the tools.

I realize I do this often. Instead of questioning the tools in this or any process, I made the process wrong saying it didn't work for me. What I now realize is the tools needed to be individualized by me to have the process work for me. Big aha moment. Change the tools, not the process.

With this daily process, we are trying to narrow the gap between thought and action so that thought leads to effortless action. I felt great excitement at the possibility of this for me. When I have a thought I automatically begin to judge it as right or wrong, good or bad, should I do it or shouldn't I, am I worthy of doing it, do I have the courage to do it etc, etc. I get so caught up in trying to analyze the thought that I do nothing.....leaving a wide gap between that thought and any action. The thought that I don't need to validate the thought was huge.

It's interesting that when we have habits that are so ingrained, we don't know there is any other way. I knew when I first heard you on a teleconference call that you had some information that would be helpful to me. I love that you come from a place ofhow can we make this process manageable for you. You are magnificent...Two Big hugs for you... With Great Appreciation, xxxxxxxx

About the Author

Lecturer, entrepreneur and Fortune 500 business consultant, Vish Writer is the author of the Amazon No 1 bestseller, "The Joy of Becoming God".

Visit him at Spiritual Simplicity The Real Secret

Source: www.isnare.com

Source: <http://articles.exospy.com>