

Babydoll Shoes Designed To Fit You

Every woman had a favorite doll to play with as a child, and the shoes on the dolls feet were the type that slipped on effortlessly without any type of strap to keep them in place. That shoe style has been copied over the years to accommodate shoe wearers who wanted stylish fashion footwear that were easy to wear and considerably lighter than loafers and other casual shoe styles.

Women still search for baby dolls that wear shoes but prefer to buy larger sized shoes styled for everyday wear for their own children to enjoy. The most popular style of babydoll shoes are called Mary Jane's and Mothers always buy at least one pair while their child is going to play school. The rounded toe of this particular babydoll shoe is highly recognizable to Mothers who consider Mary Jane's a status symbol for fashionably shoe styles that are also affordably priced.

Parents love baby doll styled shoes because the design of the shoe is timeless. This shoe style was worn during World War II and has been seen in school yards for over 50 years. The readily identifiable strap on baby dolls shoes serves a decorative and useful purpose. Parents know that once the strap is secured with a metal clasp that the shoes will replace in place after many hours of wear. Baby doll shoes are styled in several models, but most parents prefer to buy the styles with boxed heels.

Budget conscious families select baby doll styled footwear because they are affordably priced. Some shoes stores will feature this style of shoe on sale many times throughout the year because some models will sell better than others. The quality of workmanship is never questioned in any baby doll shoe brand. The overstocks of this particular shoe style are due to the great demand for requests of an abundant assortment of baby doll shoe styles but the availability of children to wear them in a specific locale might be lacking.

Public schools around the country are adopting the baby doll shoe style as part of the school uniform programs. The long wearing features of the baby doll shoe style are what make them so popular among administrators and families alike. Most of the Mary Jane's footwear will be ordered in patent leather because scuffs and dents do not show up with this durable material. A school system might select baby doll loafers because the primary grades want baby dolls shoes with different colors than those worn by classmates many grades below them.

Baby doll shoes can also be worn for dressy occasions because of the intricate details that are provided in some shoe models. The classic rounded toe can be complimented with an intricate ribbon of stitching on the top portion of the shoe and that stitching can be filled in with miniature cultured pearls. These baby doll shoes would be perfect for wear at church and school social events such as band concerts and piano recitals. These baby doll shoes would feature no strap but would allow children to remain safe due to the low heels on the shoe and the non-skid surface implemented into the baby doll shoe sole.
