Creating a blog is a common part of any work from home opportunity in making extra money. If you have not realized the commercial application of blogs, you should take the time to understand the concept of a blog and how it can be helpful to you. A blog helps to bring traffic to your site, it helps to define what your web site is all about and it helps to encourage visitors to your blog to become buyers of your products or services. You can either prepare the blog articles and post them yourself, or you can hire the work done by freelancers.

What is it?

A blog is a shortened version of 'web log' which originally began as a web based page where you could keep track of favorite web pages, similar to a bookmark, only on the internet so you could access it from any location where you have internet access. As the idea of a blog expanded, it became more of a personal journal which eventually expanded to become a utilized as a business blog. When you work at home, you can make good use of a business blog to let visitors know what your business is and why they should purchase your products rather than those of your competitors.

Who Reads Blogs

Blogs have become popular with search engines and with those who are looking for particular information on the internet. Blogs contain keyword rich content designed to attract visitors to the web site and provide a constant stream of targeted buyers to your web site. Those who want to know more information about a subject will be linked through the search engine results page to the work from home blog that you have created which contains much relevant and informative data. In short, many people looking for specific information will read and enjoy blogs.

Where Do You Find Content?

When you have a blog as part of your work from home activities in making extra money, you will need a constant stream of information, tips and articles to place on your blog web site. If the subject is one with which you are familiar, you may want to write the blog entries yourself. Most blog site owners, though, contract with others to prepare and post relevant content to place on the web site. This provides variety in presentation style, while maintaining the overall theme of the site. If you are providing content for a site owner on a contract basis, you have realized a great income opportunity.

Making Money With Blogs

For blog owners, the chances in making extra money with this work from home opportunity is obvious. You can incorporate a blog into your web site easily and utilize it to draw visitors and hopefully buyers to your web site. You can also create passive income opportunities by using the blog as a basis for Google AdSense. All you need to do is add a few lines of code to your blog site and you will receive the benefits of the keyword rich ads that draw others to your web site.
